Instructions

Form ST-1 20, Resale Certificate, is a sales tax exemption certificate. Only a purchaser who has a valid Certificate of Authority issued by the NYS Tax Department may use this form. The purchaser must present a properly completed Resale Certificate to the seller to claim exemption from tax for purchases of tangible personal property (other than motor fuel or diesel motor fuel) or services, that they will resell or transfer to the customer. (See items A, B and C on certificate.)

When property or services intended for resale are purchased tax exempt with a Resale Certificate, but are later used or consumed by the purchaser rather than resold, use tax is due on the purchase price. When manufacturers, processors, or assemblers convert to personal use, the same kind of products (items) as those they sell in the regular course of business, the basis of tax is the normal selling price of the product, rather than the cost.

As a purchaser, a vendor, other than a temporary vendor,* may file a blanket resale certificate with the seller to cover all purchases of the same general type of property or service purchased for resale. However, each purchase invoice based on a blanket Resale Certificate must show the purchaser's name, address and Certificate of Authority identification number.

Limitation on use

Contractors cannot use this certificate. They must either:

- _ issue Form ST- 1 20. 1, Contractors Exempt Purchase Certificate, if the tangible personal property being purchased qualifies for exemption as specified by the certificate, or
- issue Form AU-297, Direct Payment Permit, or
- pay sales tax at the time of purchase.

Contractors are entitled to a refund or credit of sales tax paid on materials used in repairing, servicing or maintaining real property, if the materials are transferred to the purchaser of the taxable service in conjunction with the performance of the service. For additional information, see Publication 862, Sales and Use Tax Classifications of Capital Improvements and Repairs to Real Property.

To the Purchaser

If you intentionally issue a fraudulent exemption certificate, you will become liable for penalties and interest, in addition to the sales tax initially due. Some penalties that apply:

- 100% of the tax due
- $50 for each fraudulent exemption certificate issued
- a misdemeanor. penalty consisting of fines not to exceed $10,000 for an individual or $20,000 for a corporation
- loss of your Certificate of Authority
- * The term temporary vendor was added to the. Tax Law September 1, 1994. It is defined as a vendor, other than a show or entertainment vendor, who, in no more than two consecutive quarters in any 12-month period, makes sales of tangible personal property or services that are subject to tax.

To the Seller

You must get a properly completed exemption certificate from your customer no later than 90 days after the delivery of the property or the performance of the service, or we will deem the sale to have been taxable. When you receive a certificate after the 90 days, both you and the purchaser are subject to the burden of proving that the sale was exempt, and additional documentation may be required. An exemption certificate received on time that is not properly completed will be considered satisfactory if the deficiency is corrected within a reasonable period.

Your failure to collect sales and compensating use tax because you accepted an improperly completed exemption certificate makes you, the seller, personally liable for the tax, plus any penalty and interest due. If you are given a properly completed New York State exemption document, you will not be responsible if the purchaser misuses the certificate unless you know about the misuse.

You must keep this exemption certificate for at least three years after the due date of the return to which it relates, or the date the return was filed, if later. You must also maintain a method of associating an exempt sale made to a customer with the exemption certificate you have on file from that customer.

Caution: You must have a valid New York State Certificate of Authority to sell any taxable tangible personal property or service (or to buy or sell for resale). If you engage in these transactions without possessing a valid Certificate of Authority, besides the criminal penalties imposed, you will be subject to a penalty of up to $500 for the first day on which you make a sale or purchase and up to $200 for each additional day, up to a maximum of $10,000.
